Enthronements of three new Metropolitans this week

The enthronements of three new Metropolitans of the Autocephalous Orthodox Church of Greece will take place this week. The three Metropolitans were elected by Church hierarchs at an extraordinary Holy Synod session on March 20.

Specifically, the new Metropolitan of Glyfada, His Eminence Antonios, will be enthroned on Tuesday at the Sts. Constantine and Helen Cathedral, in the southeast Athens coastal district.

The same celebratory service of enthronement will be held on Thursday for the new Metropolitan of Peristeri, His Eminence Climentas. The Peristeri Metropolis is located in western Athens.

Finally, the new Metropolitan of Sisanion and Siatista, His Eminence Athanasios, will be enthroned in the northern Greece Metropolis on Friday, and specifically at the St. Demetrius Metropolitan Cathedral.
