

Director of Greek Education, Dr. Anastasios Koularmanis, Recognized for Exceptional Contributions to Greek Education

Director of Greek Education, Dr. Anastasios Koularmanis, Recognized for Exceptional Contributions to Greek Education

Dr. Anastasios Koularmanis, the Director of Education of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America, was recently honored by the Federation of Hellenic Educators for his outstanding contributions to Greek education. Dr. Koularmanis's illustrious career within the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America has been marked by unparalleled dedication and innovation.

Joining the Archdiocese in 1999, Dr. Koularmanis assumed the pivotal role of Principal at St. Demetrios School in Astoria, NY. Under his visionary leadership, the school experienced unprecedented growth and acclaim, culminating in its recognition as the 7th best Christian school in New York City by the esteemed website Niche in 2019.

Colleagues laud Dr. Koularmanis's innovative approach as a cornerstone of his well-deserved recognition. His unwavering commitment and ingenuity have truly set him apart in today's private school sector.

Expressing gratitude and humility during the award reception, Dr. Koularmanis emphasized the importance of advocacy for schools and programs, particularly in the face of ongoing challenges. "It's an honor to be recognized," he remarked, "especially during these challenging times. Together, we will continue to make a meaningful difference in the lives of our students."

Dr. Anastasios Koularmanis brings over 33 years of experience in education to his role as Director of Education, a position he has held since 2020. Before his tenure with the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America, Dr. Koularmanis served as an educator for the NYC Department of Education and CUNY.

Congratulations once again to Dr. Koularmanis on this prestigious accolade. His continued impact and leadership in the field of Greek education are eagerly anticipated.

Photo: GOARCH

goarch.org