

Elpidophoros visits Archdiocese's youth summer camp

The new Archbishop of America, His Eminence Elpidophoros, on Thursday visited the Orthodox camping ministry of St. Paul, in New York City.

In a post on the Archbishop's official social media accounts, His Eminence noted that

".. My visit to @campsaintpaul today reminded me of my youth. I too attended summer camp. Camp helped me grow closer to God and inspired me to enter the priesthood. Camp nurtures our youth's relationship with Christ, builds bonds of faith, and helps youth experience God's creation."

Christ said, "Let the little children come to me" (Matt 19:14). You, our youth and young adults are not only the future of the Church, you are the Church, today—full members of it! Inspire us. Teach us. Take courage to lead us. Live and breathe Christ in all you do.
