The School of Byzantine Music of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of Australia offers both young and old the opportunity to be introduced to the sacred art of ecclesiastical Byzantine music, which, according to St. John Chrysostom, “seems to charm the ear, but in truth, awakens the soul.”

With the blessing of His Eminence Archbishop Makarios of Australia, the New South Wales branch of the school, based in Sydney, is preparing for the 2025 academic year, during which it will offer Byzantine music lessons: a) for boys and girls aged 8 to 15, and b) for youth aged 16 and older, as well as adults.

It is noted that classes for children are free of charge, and lessons will be held at the Cathedral of the Annunciation in Redfern and the Church of the Resurrection of Christ in Kogarah. Interested parents can obtain more information by contacting the School administrators via email at [\[email protected\]](#) or by filling out the relevant expression of interest form at: Interest Form.
