

05/09/2019

More prohibitions on Christians in China reported

Chinese authorities recently announced an expansion of a controversial law against proselytizing or imposing one's faith on minors in the country.

Essentially, Beijing now aims to outlaw Sunday schools and other education programs by Churches in the country, and by extension, to even prohibit baptisms of minors.

In many cases, police have already pasted the legal prohibitions outside places of worship.