

North Korea attempting to stamp out Christianity

A propaganda video that surfaced this month shows the North Korean regime attempting to stamp out any and all Christian elements in the isolated communist dictatorship.

The video reveals how the Pyongyang attempts to slander Christian believers as “religious fanatics” and “spies”, as it claims, intent on undermining the stability of one of the most repressive regimes on the face of the earth.

The video, obtained by The Voice of the Martyrs, a Christian nonprofit group that supports persecuted Christians around the world, was allegedly used to teach state security agents how to identify and silence those who promote religion inside the country.

North Korea is considered the as the worst country in the world for the persecution of Christians, with international organizations saying that up to 50,000 Christians in the country are incarcerated for their faith.