Theology students take part in nationwide Romania clean-up campaign

University theology students participated in the “Let’s Do It, Romania!” campaign over the weekend, turning the encouragement of Ecumenical Patriarch, His All Holiness Bartholomew I, into action for the environment.

The specific volunteer association on Saturday organized a national clean-up day in 26 counties around the country.

Particular references, in fact, were made to the “Green Patriarch”, a term often employed by the international press to refer to Bartholomew.
