

A photograph of the facade of the National Museum in Zagreb. The building is constructed from light-colored stone and features a prominent pediment at the top. The facade is divided into three main levels. The upper level has three arched windows with decorative grilles. The middle level has five rectangular windows, also with decorative grilles, and a central stone relief sculpture. The lower level is characterized by a series of large, arched windows with white frames and decorative grilles. The building is situated in an urban environment, with other buildings visible in the background.
