

Archbishop Atallah Hanna's health condition is stable, says medical team overseeing his condition

Director of Jordan Hospital, Abdullah Al-Bisher held a press conference today to talk about the results of the laboratory tests of the complex toxic substances that the Israeli occupation used to poison the Head of the Sebastia Diocese of the Greek Orthodox Church in Jerusalem Archbishop Atallah Hanna.

Al-Bisher said that since the moment Archbishop Atallah Hanna arrived at the hospital, he was provided with the necessary treatment, as all required medical examinations were performed.

He stressed that the health condition of Archbishop Atallah Hanna is currently stable.

Not all the results of the medical examinations were revealed, Al-Bisher pointed out, noting that these tests must be analyzed and presented to all specialists.

He added that Bishop Hanna can complete his treatment in the hospital's outpatient clinics if the medical team overseeing his condition thinks it's needed.
