Patriarchate of Georgia releases statement on COVID-19 preventive measures

The Patriarchate of Georgia released a statement on coronavirus preventive measures and gave recommendations to the parish.

Georgian Orthodox Church urges its parishioners to refrain from going abroad, including going on a pilgrimage except for extreme necessity.

> “As for those travelled from high-risk countries, they have to follow self-isolation rules. Those individuals who have other types of flu should stay at home. At their request, they can receive the Eucharist at home.
> The liturgy will be held in the usual manner, though we consider it permissible to receive a sweet wine after Eucharist by disposable plastic glass or parish can bring their own glass as well,” the Georgian Patriarchate said in a statement.
