Orthodoxia news agency to remain on ramparts of news gathering, while following all public health directives, measures

The Orthodoxia news agency, in line with public health guidelines and measures to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, is strictly following all directives and recommendations.

All of the journalists, technicians and associates of the Orthodoxia news agency, and the online magazine Pemptousia, with faith in God and the Church's sacraments, and with trust in science, assume the responsibility to remain with you, our viewers and readers, amid these crucial times.

We will continue to post news and information about the Orthodox world, with texts, interviews and spiritual testaments – carrying this Cross of burden and avoiding temptation.
