Through the Theotokos, God becomes man in order to restore the corrupted nature of humanity and to help man to regain the peace with the Creator.

During the service, the metropolitan prayed together with the clergy and lay church-goers for the peace in the world, asking God for protection against seen and unseen danger. The liturgical community prayed Virgin Mary for heavenly protection and fervent intercession for the world.

At the end of the liturgical service, the worshipers listened to a message of pastoral guidance and received the arch-pastor's blessing.
