

Archbishop of Athens Ieronymos in good spirits, tests will determine his release from hospital

A latest round of medical tests on the Archbishop of Athens and All Greece, His Beatitude Ieronymos, will determine when the Primate of the Church of Greece will be discharged from an Athens hospital.

His Beatitude was hospitalized last week as a precaution, after testing positive for Covid-19.

According to information collected by the Orthodoxia News Agency, the Archbishop is in good spirits, and his condition has improved. The same sources said he will remain at the Evangelismos hospital until Sunday as a precaution.