Russian Church dispatching personal safety gear to clerics assisting, ministering Covid-19 patients

More than 3,000 parcels with individual protective gear were dispatched to clerics of the Russian Orthodox Church who are active in ministering and assisting patients infected with Covid-19.

According to the Moscow Patriarchate's Synodical Department for Charity and Social Services, another 10,000 pairs of surgical gloves and face masks have also be sent to clerics for the holding of sacraments for infected patients.
