Greek Revolution bicentennial events on eastern Aegean island of Psara

On the eastern Aegean island of Psara, commemorations for the bicentennial of the beginning of the Greek War of Independence concluded with a splendorous event in the isle’s main harbor, dedicated to revolutionary hero and admiral Konstantinos Kanaris and his men.

The events commenced with a doxology service at the Metropolitan Cathedral on the nearby island of Chios, officiated by the Metropolitan of Chios, Psara and Inousses, His Eminence Markos, followed by a memorial service and the laying of wreaths at a grand monument to Kanaris.
