Changes in Church-state relations will be submitted to hierarchs on Wednesday

A session of the Autocephalous Orthodox Church of Greece's standing Holy Synod was concluded on Tuesday, although a highly anticipated framework for implementing changes in Church-state relations, something promoted by the current government, will be submitted to hierarchs on Wednesday.

According to information learned by the Orthodoxia news agency, members of a committee of dialogue, tasked with holding talks with the relevant education ministry leadership, will also attend Wednesday's session.
