Fr. Andreas Hadjisavvis has fallen asleep in the Lord

The Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of Thyateira and Great Britain announces with sorrow that the late Protopresbyter Andreas Hadjisavvis has fallen asleep in the Lord. For forty years, Fr Andreas self-sacrificially served his fellows, being incessantly on the side of all those who needed the help and support of a priest in every circumstance of their lives. Thousands of Orthodox faithful in North London were baptized, married, buried, received the Holy Communion from his hands. His family, his wife Maria, his four children, his grandchildren have missed him all these years of his untiring ministry. Still, they may boast in the Lord that the husband, father, and grandfather, Fr Andreas, has become the father and brother of so many people who today pray with them for the rest of his soul. Another announcement will follow regarding the details of his funeral service. May his memory be eternal!
