The Annunciation Feast Day in Alexandria

The Annunciation Feast Day was celebrated in grand splendor by the Patriarchate of Alexandria and All Africa, with the Pope and Patriarch of Alexandria and All Africa, His Divine Beatitude Theodoros II, officiating at the Divine Liturgy at the Annunciation, or Evangelismos, Orthodox Cathedral in the ancient Egyptian city.

Greece’s general consul in the city, Athanasios Kotsonis, as well as the presidents of the ethnic Greek community in Alexandria, and the Cypriot community of Egypt, respectively, attended the Church service.
