Additional Covid-19 measures expected in Greece after New Year’s

The Greek government is expected to take additional measures to prevent exposure to the Covid-19 virus, especially of the now ominous Omicron variant, possibly after the New Year’s holidays, although such measures may even be announced days earlier.
In a related development, the Covid-19 vaccination program in Greece commenced exactly a year ago today, with the first injections offered at five hospitals in the greater Athens area.

One of the first people to get a Covid-19 inoculation in the country, in fact, and the first Church hierarch, was the Metropolitan of Nafpaktos and Aghios Vlasios. His Eminence Ierotheos.
