04/01/2022

Native-born population decreases by nearly 40,000 in one year

The native-born population of Greece appears to have decreased by nearly 40,000 people within a year, according to estimates by the country’s statistics authority, which were published this week.

Births in the country are now lower than annual deaths.