

Ethnic Greeks of Himare point to another round of property confiscations by Albanian govt

Representatives of the ethnic Greek community in Himare, a coastal district in south-central Albania, warned of yet another effort to eliminate millennia-old Hellenism from the district, following a latest decision by the Rama government in the country to confiscate property belonging to members of the ethnic minority.