Aegean Airlines and Olympic Air will carry the Holy Fire from Jerusalem to Greece on Holy Saturday, using three additional aircraft to carry out non-commercial flights specially for this purpose, in addition to its scheduled commercial flights, and thus reach as many Greek destinations as possible.

The aeroplanes will take off immediately after the arrival of the Holy Fire from Jerusalem and take it to 14 different Greek destinations, heading toward the Ionian Sea, Aegean Sea and central Greece.

According to the aircarrier's estimates the scheduled arrival to the last destination of every region will be between 20:00 and 22:00 (Athens time).
