Information about the miraculous icon of Panagia of Pisidiotissa.

At the seventh Ecumenical Synod, a text was read by the Patriarch of Constantinople Eutychios, in which it is written that myrrh flows from the hands of the Virgin of Pisidiotissa and the following event is described.

In the Pontic city of Amasia a baby had been stillborn. His parents, who had trouble conceiving children, sadly sought refuge with the Patriarch of Constantinople Eutychios and begged him to pray for them to have children. The Patriarch prayed fervently, anointed the parents with the myrrh of Panagia Pisidiotissa and told them: “You will have a strong child and you will name him Peter”.
