

More than 100 baptisms of Orthodox converts in Madagascar

More than 100 people were baptized as Orthodox Christians in just three days recently. The baptisms were officiated by the Archimandrite of the Diocese South Madagascar, the Right Reverend Prodromos, who noted that his ecclesiastical jurisdiction is three times the size of Greece, and hosts some 7,000 Orthodox Christians — a small parish, as he said, but one that is tasked with growing.
