

13/05/2019

New Orthodox cathedral being built in Kazakhstan capital

New Orthodox cathedral being built in Kazakhstan capital

A new Orthodox cathedral is being built in the central Asia country of Kazakhstan, and specifically in the capital of Nur-Sultan, previously known as Astana. The building of the church in the predominately Muslim country is an initiative of the Russian Orthodox Church, with completion to take three years.