

Archbishop Elpidophoros Celebrates Consecration of Holy Trinity Cathedral Indianapolis, Indiana

On Friday evening, His Eminence Archbishop Elpidophoros of America, His Eminence Metropolitan Nicholas of Detroit, Rev. Fr. Gregory Hohnholt, clergy, presbyteras, parish council members and consecration committee members gathered for a meal before the Consecration events begin at Holy Trinity Cathedral in Indianapolis. In addressing those present Archbishop Elpidophoros commented, "As your Archbishop, it is my distinct privilege and pleasure to join you for this weekend of joyous ceremony and fellowship. We shall all witness the ancient rites of our Church that establish this House of the Lord as an everlasting temple of His Holy Glory. Each of us has a part to play, and many of you have already fulfilled many roles that are bringing to the Holy Trinity Cathedral the unique and profound experience to come. Your thoughtfulness in this regard is not going unnoticed. I pray that these next days are filled with all the joy and spiritual satisfaction for you and your families. You have clearly accomplished much in the past, and your future looks to accomplish much more, because you are established upon the firmest Foundation of all - Jesus Christ Himself being the Chief Cornerstone. May you always experience His Heavenly benediction, and the grace of this Consecration - from this day forward, and unto the ages of ages. Amen!" (Read full text here.)
