Humanitarian crisis in Kosovo & Metohija; Orthodox Church issues plea for support

The Serbian Orthodox Church and the Diocese of Raška-Prizren, based in Gračanica, this week warned of a looming humanitarian crisis involving the remaining Serbian population in north Kosovo and Metohija, while also calling for immediate relief.

According to an announcement, the situation for the remaining Christians in the province is worse than even during the war, following a decision by Kosovo Albanian authorities to impose a 100-percent tax on products imported from Serbia proper.
